My Picks for the month of May:

2009 Boedecker Cellars Athena Pinot Noir Oregon $29.

The 2009 was just released and is drinking spectacular. 2008 Pinot Noir Athena which was aged for 9 months sur lie with before spending another 9 months in neutral oak. Brooding black fruits, smoke, violets, and spice box aromas inform the nose of a dense, structured wine that deftly combines power and elegance. 91 Robert Parker Get it while you can...

2011 Pappas Pinot Blanc Willamette Valley $15.50

100% Pinot Blanc grown in Northern Willamette Valley, in Dundee Hills & Yamhill-Carlton AVAs, aged in all stainless steel. The nose is full of sweet floral aromas, the palate is bright and lively with stone fruit and melon and it all balances at the finish with a dry, crisp acidity. Pinot blanc has the profile of a beautiful marriage between the richness of Chardonnay without the oak & the subtle fruit forwardness of pinot gris. Great for porch sipping or with shellfish or cheeses of any kind.

2005 Cayalla Red Table Wine, Oregon: $10

"Excellent. Firesteed is showing consistency with this brand, matching our rating from its debut vintage of 2004. It's a blend of Syrah (45%), Merlot (35%) and Cab Sauv that's fruit-forward in every direction with aromas of light cherries, strawberries, root beer and Graham cracker. Its flavors are reminiscent of a cherry cola with a juicy structure and ample tannins. The more you get into this, the better it gets." Pair with grilled meats. Drink Now
